To Whom It May Concern:

It is my distinct honor to write in support of Matt May. I have known Matt for nearly fifteen years, during which time we have remained very close friends and colleagues. Matt's honesty, dependability and artistic integrity, are just a few of the qualities that make him such a valuable resource and a pleasure to work with in any endeavor. Additionally, Matt's expertise in all-things theatre was the determining factor in hiring him as a Production Consultant for our high school musical, The Sound of Music.

A consummate professional, Matt is a brilliant artist and teacher who can be counted on in any given situation. During Matt's time with us, he worked closely with students and staff in a creative and demanding environment. Because of Matt's leadership skills and organized mindset, he naturally commands attention, response and respect from students and colleagues. As a Director, I witnessed first-hand how well Matt worked with students as he coached them one-on-one. His sensitivity to their needs while simultaneously challenging them to master the task at hand was inspiring. Matt was also an asset to our stage crew when he stepped in to help during our tech rehearsal. Matt's ability to multi-task and manage students effectively in a fast-paced, highly charged setting, is why he proved to be an essential element to the success of our production.

Throughout our relationship, Matt has continued to show his commitment to our friendship and I can count on his unbiased guidance and support at all times. I trust and value his opinions as an individual of the highest caliber. It is for this and for so many other good reasons that I recommend Matt May with the most possible assurance and enthusiasm.
